WAY

This year's United Way Campaign was the most successful ever with a total contribution of $1890.46 from Weston students.

The activities included many of the old favourites, such as car washes, raffles and pancake breakfasts. However, 1974 saw the introduction of an "egg-cating" contest, in which Dave Rennie consumed 23 raw eggs. What a "yoke". Hmm....

The two major money makers were the Variety Show and an International Pot-Luck Dinner, another new event. This was very successful and involved most of the school forms, who contributed by making the international foods. We hope that this event will become another Weston tradition.

Once again, thanks to all those who helped us double last year's total contribution.

The Christmas Basket Drive was very successful this year. With the help of most of the Weston students, we managed to feed 22 families. It is certainly the right time of the year to help other people and Weston came through with amazing vigour. There were many cans stacked on the tables in front of the office showing Weston's support. We had many helpers during this drive, so, thanks to everyone who participated.

FOOTBALL

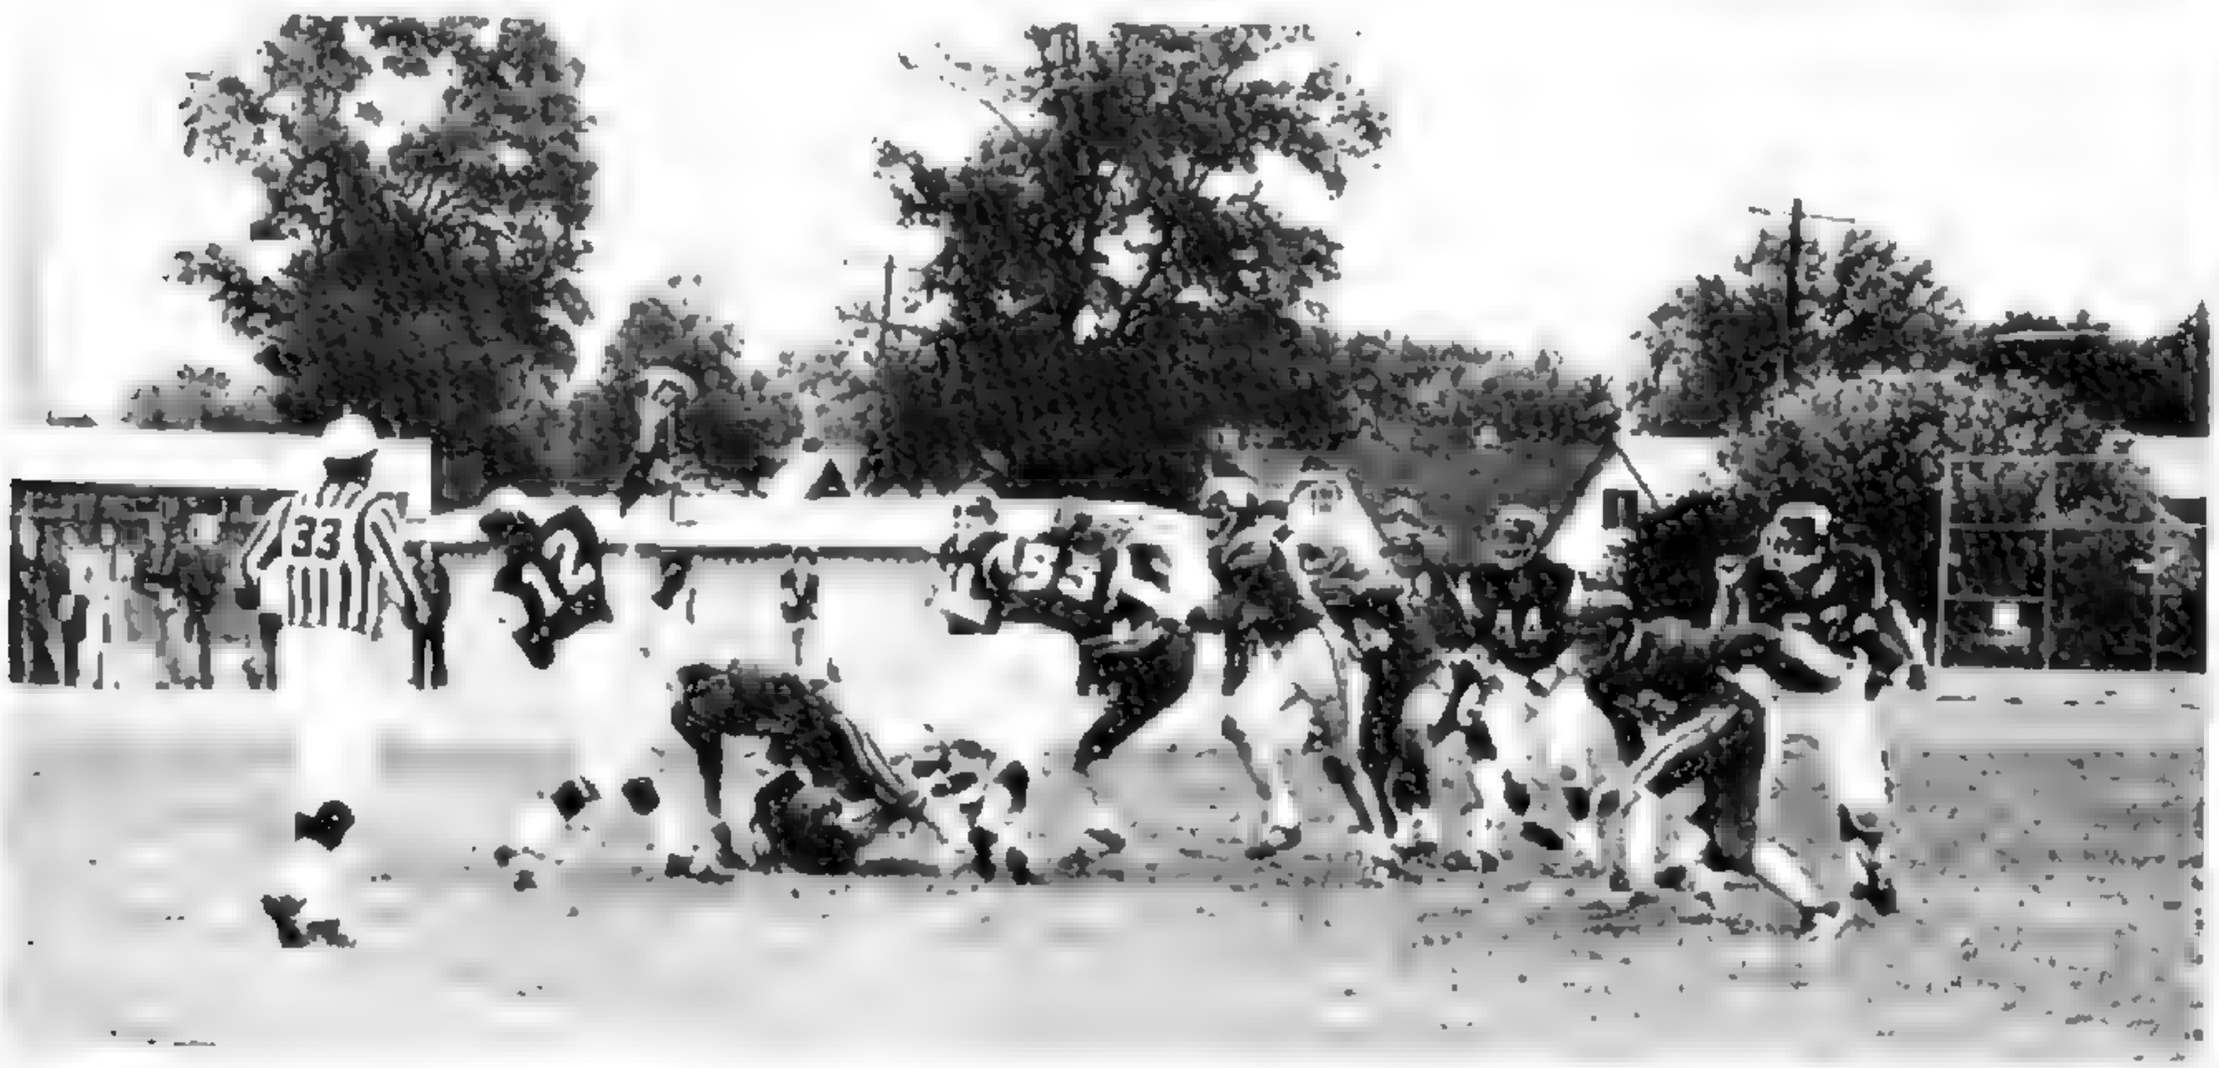
The Weston Senior Ironmen started off the season on a winning note. In the first two games, a total of sixty-one points were scored by the offence, led by veteran quarterback Rob Thompson. The defense, with middle-linebacker Sergio Lancia, played "tough", allowing not a single point to be scored.

Unfortunately, crippling injuries along with too many penalties took their toll on the team. From this point on it was an uphill struggle.

The Seniors battled hard and, backed by good school support, the Ironmen moved into the semi-finals against York Memorial.

Penalties had decided the previous meeting between these two teams with the Weston Ironmen on the losing end. The Ironmen played well but could not get on track in the first half. Weston went down in defeat, ending their disappointing and troublesome season.

Credit must go to the coaches: Mr. Bruce, Mr. Dodgson, Mr. Whitaker and Mr. Thompson, who with their hard work and coaching, managed to put the Seniors into contention.



BASKETBALL

The Senior Girls' Basketball started off their season with a "stomping" victory over Nine Number: 50-0. Following games proved to be exciting with good playing by Marg McGonegle, Gisele Marchand, Kathy Willoughby and Marianne Ferguson. Fancy footwork was portrayed by such players as Sue Avarell, Mary Beves and Liz Deans and not many opponents scored after Sue Rankine was guarding the basket.

Unfortunately the girls did not make the playoffs, but with the coach's capable coaching, next year should prove to be even more successful. Many thanks to our manager, Sharon Dras.

The Weston Junior Girls' Basketball team fought valiantly throughout the fall basketball season. Their efforts were rewarded in their final game when they turned out an 18 to 5 victory over the girls from U.T.S. Next year we're counting on the Junior Girls' Basketball Area Championship coming to Weston C.I.

Veston Senior Ironmen had another sappointing season this year winning ne league game in a close fought atch against Leaside. Although there ere many team members at the eginning of the season, interest emed to decline. In addition to this, me team members left for university f way through the season. As a result, e team was reduced drastically in mber. But with some support coming om other schools, the coaches, Mr. foyle and Mr. Hamara, managed to t a team together for the second half the season. Unfortunately, the team d to withdraw from competition cause of lack of interest on part of the am members.

This year's team had three assistant ptains: Andrew McCarthy, Gary tchinson, and Danny Mior. Special nks go to the team manager, trainer d "owner", Jim Cunningham.

CROSS COUNTRY TEAMS

Moderation was the key to workouts in September when the Girls' and Boys' Cross Country teams formed. The reason for this was an attempt to encourage the large turn out for this year's teams to "hang in there" as the season progressed. And it worked!

Early in October, we competed in our first multi-school meet against six other schools from our league, and did "great". Our girls and bantam boys' teams won their divisions, while our junior and senior boys' teams both placed third, helping us to win the overall. Medals were won by Barb Showers, Nancy Guerin, Cynthia Gray, and Rob Lang. Two weeks later, Weston competed against the same six schools and swept the field again.

On October 18, our girls' team captured the York Championship for the third straight year! Four days later, our boys' team placed second out of ten schools in the boys' championships! This was our best placing by our boys' team in five years.

The following week, our girls competed in the Toronto District Championships for the first time. Our girls put together a tremendous performance: the midget girls' team placed fourth, and our senior team won the T.D.I.A.A. Championship and qualified for the all-Ontario meet at Albion Hills. There, all the girls ran well, but special mention must go to Patti Rippington and Barb Showers who both placed in the top twenty-five in the province!

HOCKEY

This year's senior hockey team faced its problems due to many injuries and many new faces. At the start of the season it looked promising for another victorious year as Weston marched over Overlea by a score of 9-0. As the season progressed, Weston faced stiff competition from Leaside, York Memorial, and East York.

The promising rookies who featured in Weston's scoring attack were Warren Giovannini, Al Neilson, Glen Blahut, Bobby Williams, Doug Pollock and Mike Mugford. They were backed by team members from other Borough of York schools - Paul Kirk, Bill Mountford and Tyrus Hainsworth. Special mention goes to the all important veterans - Lloyd Bennett, Bill Duncan, Tim Clark, Scott Parker, Gord McGrail, Frank Welderer, Glen Newbold and Wayne Webb.

Goaltending duties were handled by Rick Giovannini and Al Fabis. Weston finished fourth in the league standing and in the playoffs were beaten by East York in sudden death.

Coaches Eric Both and Gord Whitaker are looking forward to next year as they will have more experienced players to build a winning team with. A junior team was introduced to the school for the first time this year and will offer much support for the Senior team in future years.

WRESTLING

The wrestling team had a very successful third season. In the dual meets, the team finished with 8 wins and 4 defeats. At the Waterloo Invitational Tournament, the team placed eighth out of sixteen teams. Chris Burns and Trevor Gordon placed third with Trevor winning the King Pin Trophy for the most pins in the tournament.

At the "B" Tournament, Weston was represented by eight wrestlers. John Pereira, Frank Zamero and Gabe DiDanielli placed first.

The following day, at the York League Championships, Weston finished second behind York Humber. The team boasts three York champions. Jeff Harris (90 lb.s), Chris Burns (178 lbs.), and Dante Iamonaco (unlimited). We also had four wrestlers that finished second: Chris Miller (98 lbs.), Cresent Chew (115 lbs.), Carl Harris (123 lbs.) and Trevor Gordon (136 lbs.).

Congratulations to all members of the wrestling team for a very successful season. We invite all boys to come out and join the team next year when we hope to win the York League Championship.

SWIM TEAMS

BOYS' SWIM TEAM

This year our boys' team started competition only two weeks after the tryouts had begun, early in November. We swam victories over Lord Elgin and York Memorial, held our annual intersquad meet won by the Blue Team for the first time 260 to 251, and swam an exhibition meet against York University!

During the Christmas Holidays, we held our annual banquet, while a select group competed in a Swim-Tec development meet. By the start of the new year, the team began to display a balance and depth which would eventually win us three York Championships!

As our league meets began, we beat U.T.S. and Vaughan Road, but lost a close one 298 to 286 to York Memorial. This was the first league meet we'd lost (or would lose) in over a year of competition! The dual meet season was rounded out with strong victories over the remaining York schools.

Two all-star teams were then picked, with one competing in the Toronto Relays setting 8 team records in 8 events, and the other going to the University of Waterloo where Warren Beech swam the fastest 100 Free in the history of our team.

Then in mid February we put it all together; our Bantams won their York Championship, as did our Juniors two days later, while our Seniors came second. This also gave us the overall York Championship for the second straight year!

And the following week we missed the T.D.I.A.A. Championship by only four points! Nevertheless it was great bringing those trophies home to Weston. Seven boys then qualified for the Ontario Championships in Windsor where Bill Brockbank performed the best with a 10th place finish in the 100 Backstroke.

This year Weston placed 6th in all Metropolitan Toronto, due in part to the swims of Warren Beech, our fastest freestyler ever, who was chosen as our outstanding swimmer. Great work team!

GIRLS' SWIM TEAM

With several girls graduating last year, our team was largely composed of "rookies" this year; in fact, 65% grade nine girls alone. This meant that several extra weeks had to be spent on stroke development, but by late October the team began to take shape.

Our season began with a string of victories. First we defeated West Toronto 76 to 54, then George Harvey 77 to 32, and York Memorial 88 to 68. In late November, we travelled to Burlington and beat Lord Elgin 115 to 81 in the first of several meets in combination with the boys team. Later that same week, the team took part in the Annual Blue and White intersquad meet, and looked ready for the York finals!

On December 4, our team captured the York Championship for the third consecutive year! Weston won seven of the sixteen events, the most by any one of the schools, and Laura Wallis was awarded the Junior individual trophy for her three victories!

Several of our "stars" of that meet then joined ranks with the boys team in preparation for higher level competition. These girls competed in two more co-ed meets in January in order to keep their times sharp. Then early in February, these girls travelled to the University of Waterloo for a high school invitational, the first of two big meets. The 7 girls broke 5 records in 5 events in their best competition of the year, and Patti Rippington took two of those herself.

Then after six months of training, our girls competed in the Ontario Championships, where once again Patti shone for Weston and placed 4th in the province in the 50 Breaststroke! But it was her sister, for her several championships, a host of wins that ranged back to our early years, and her unfailing loyality, that Maryann Rippington was selected as our outstanding swimmer!

YORK VOLLEYBALL CHAMPIONS

The Girls' Senior Volleyball team under the excellent coaching skills of Mrs. Turvey finished fourth in the league standings and was able to advance into the playoffs. The first game of the semi-finals was to be against Runnymede, the first place team. With a good team effort, we defeated them: two games to one. We then moved on to the finals against our old rivals, East-York. Once again Weston pulled through, won the match and the title: Toronto District Champs.

All the World is a Hotel

All the world is a hotel,
And all the men and women merely tenants,
They check in and they check out,
And all the time in between,
They are paying rent.

More check in than those who check out.
They abuse the broadloom,
And mar the furniture.

The part-time managers
Organize the tenants,
To prevent vandalism
And force the tenants
To be punctual with the rent.
The rent goes up as the quality goes down,
But the tenants have no control.

There is an infirmary,
That prolongs the tenants' stay,
So they can take part
In hotel activities.
As the tenants leave,
Their mess is cleaned up,
So the hotel can make room for more tenants.

The graffiti they leave,
Is washed away
Never to be remembered....

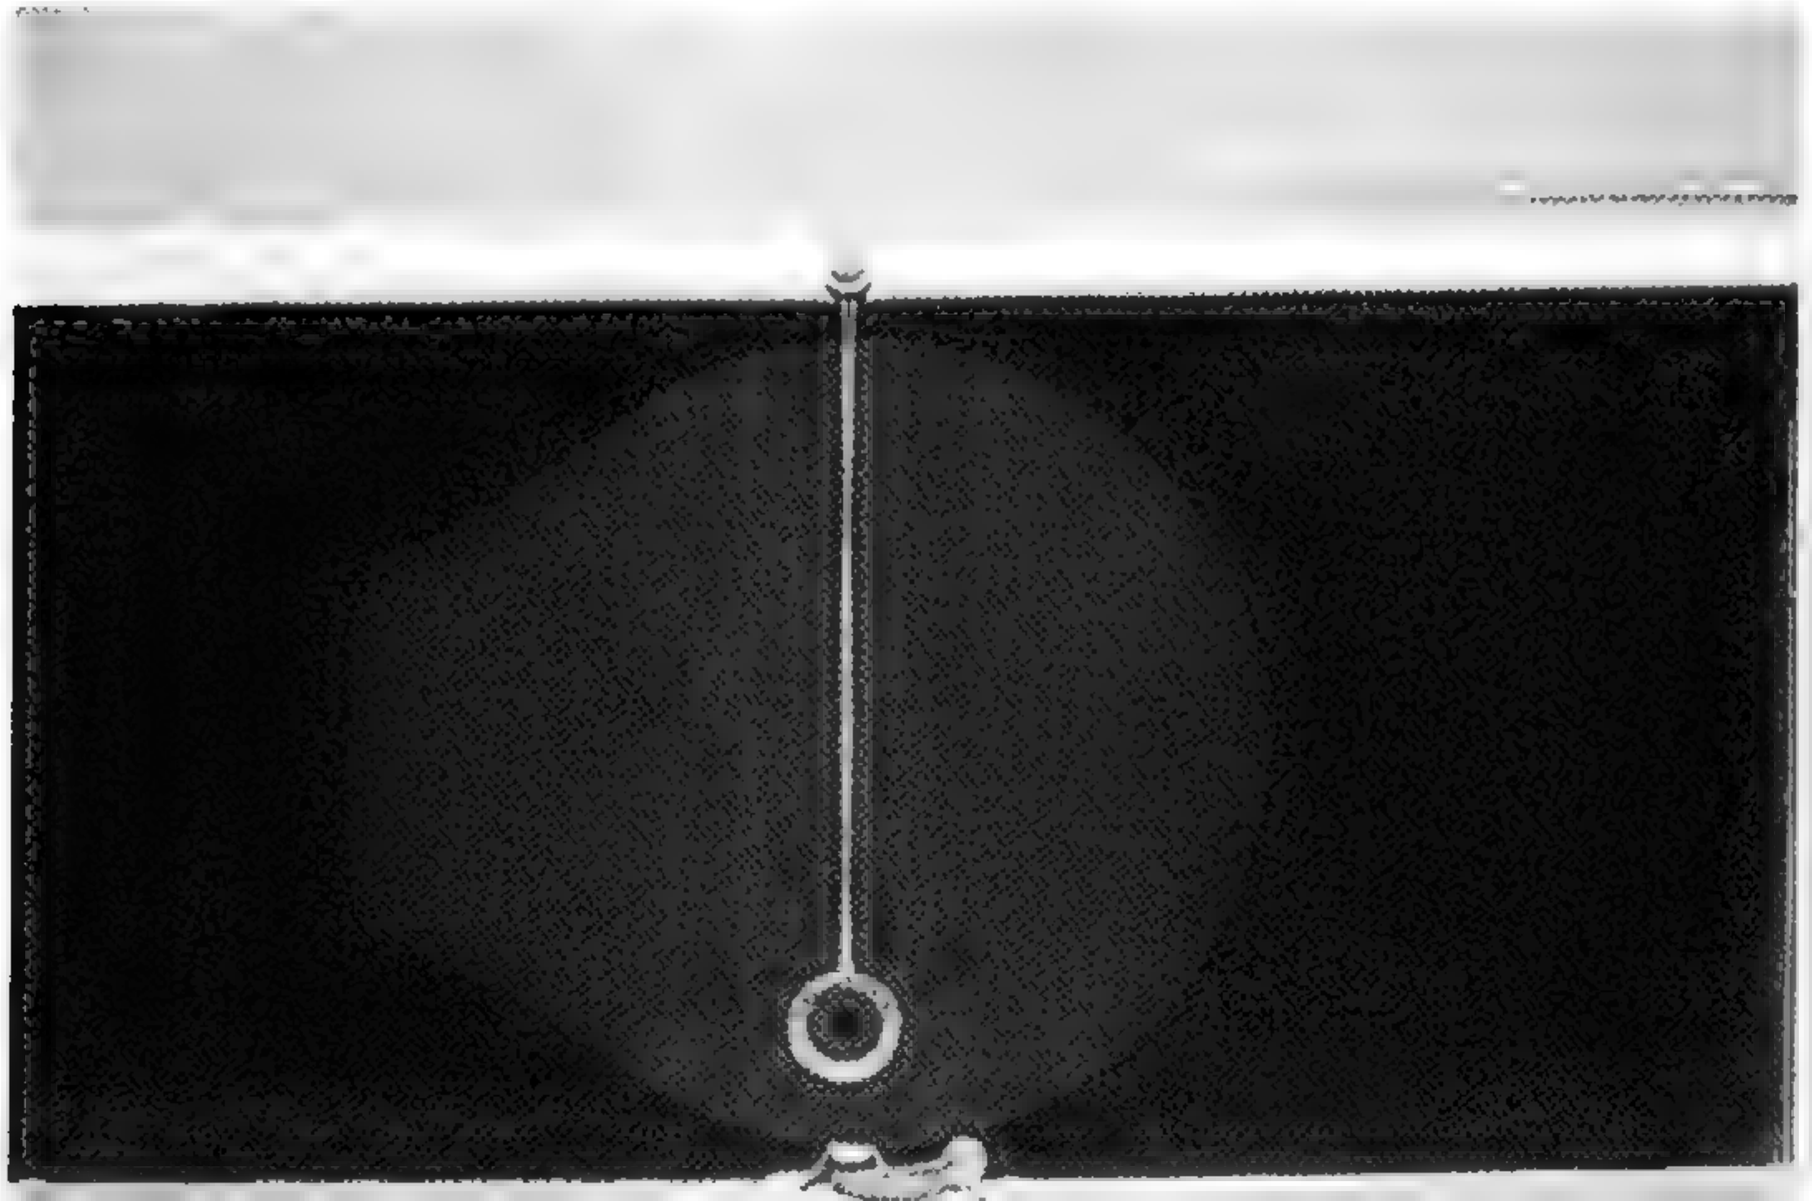
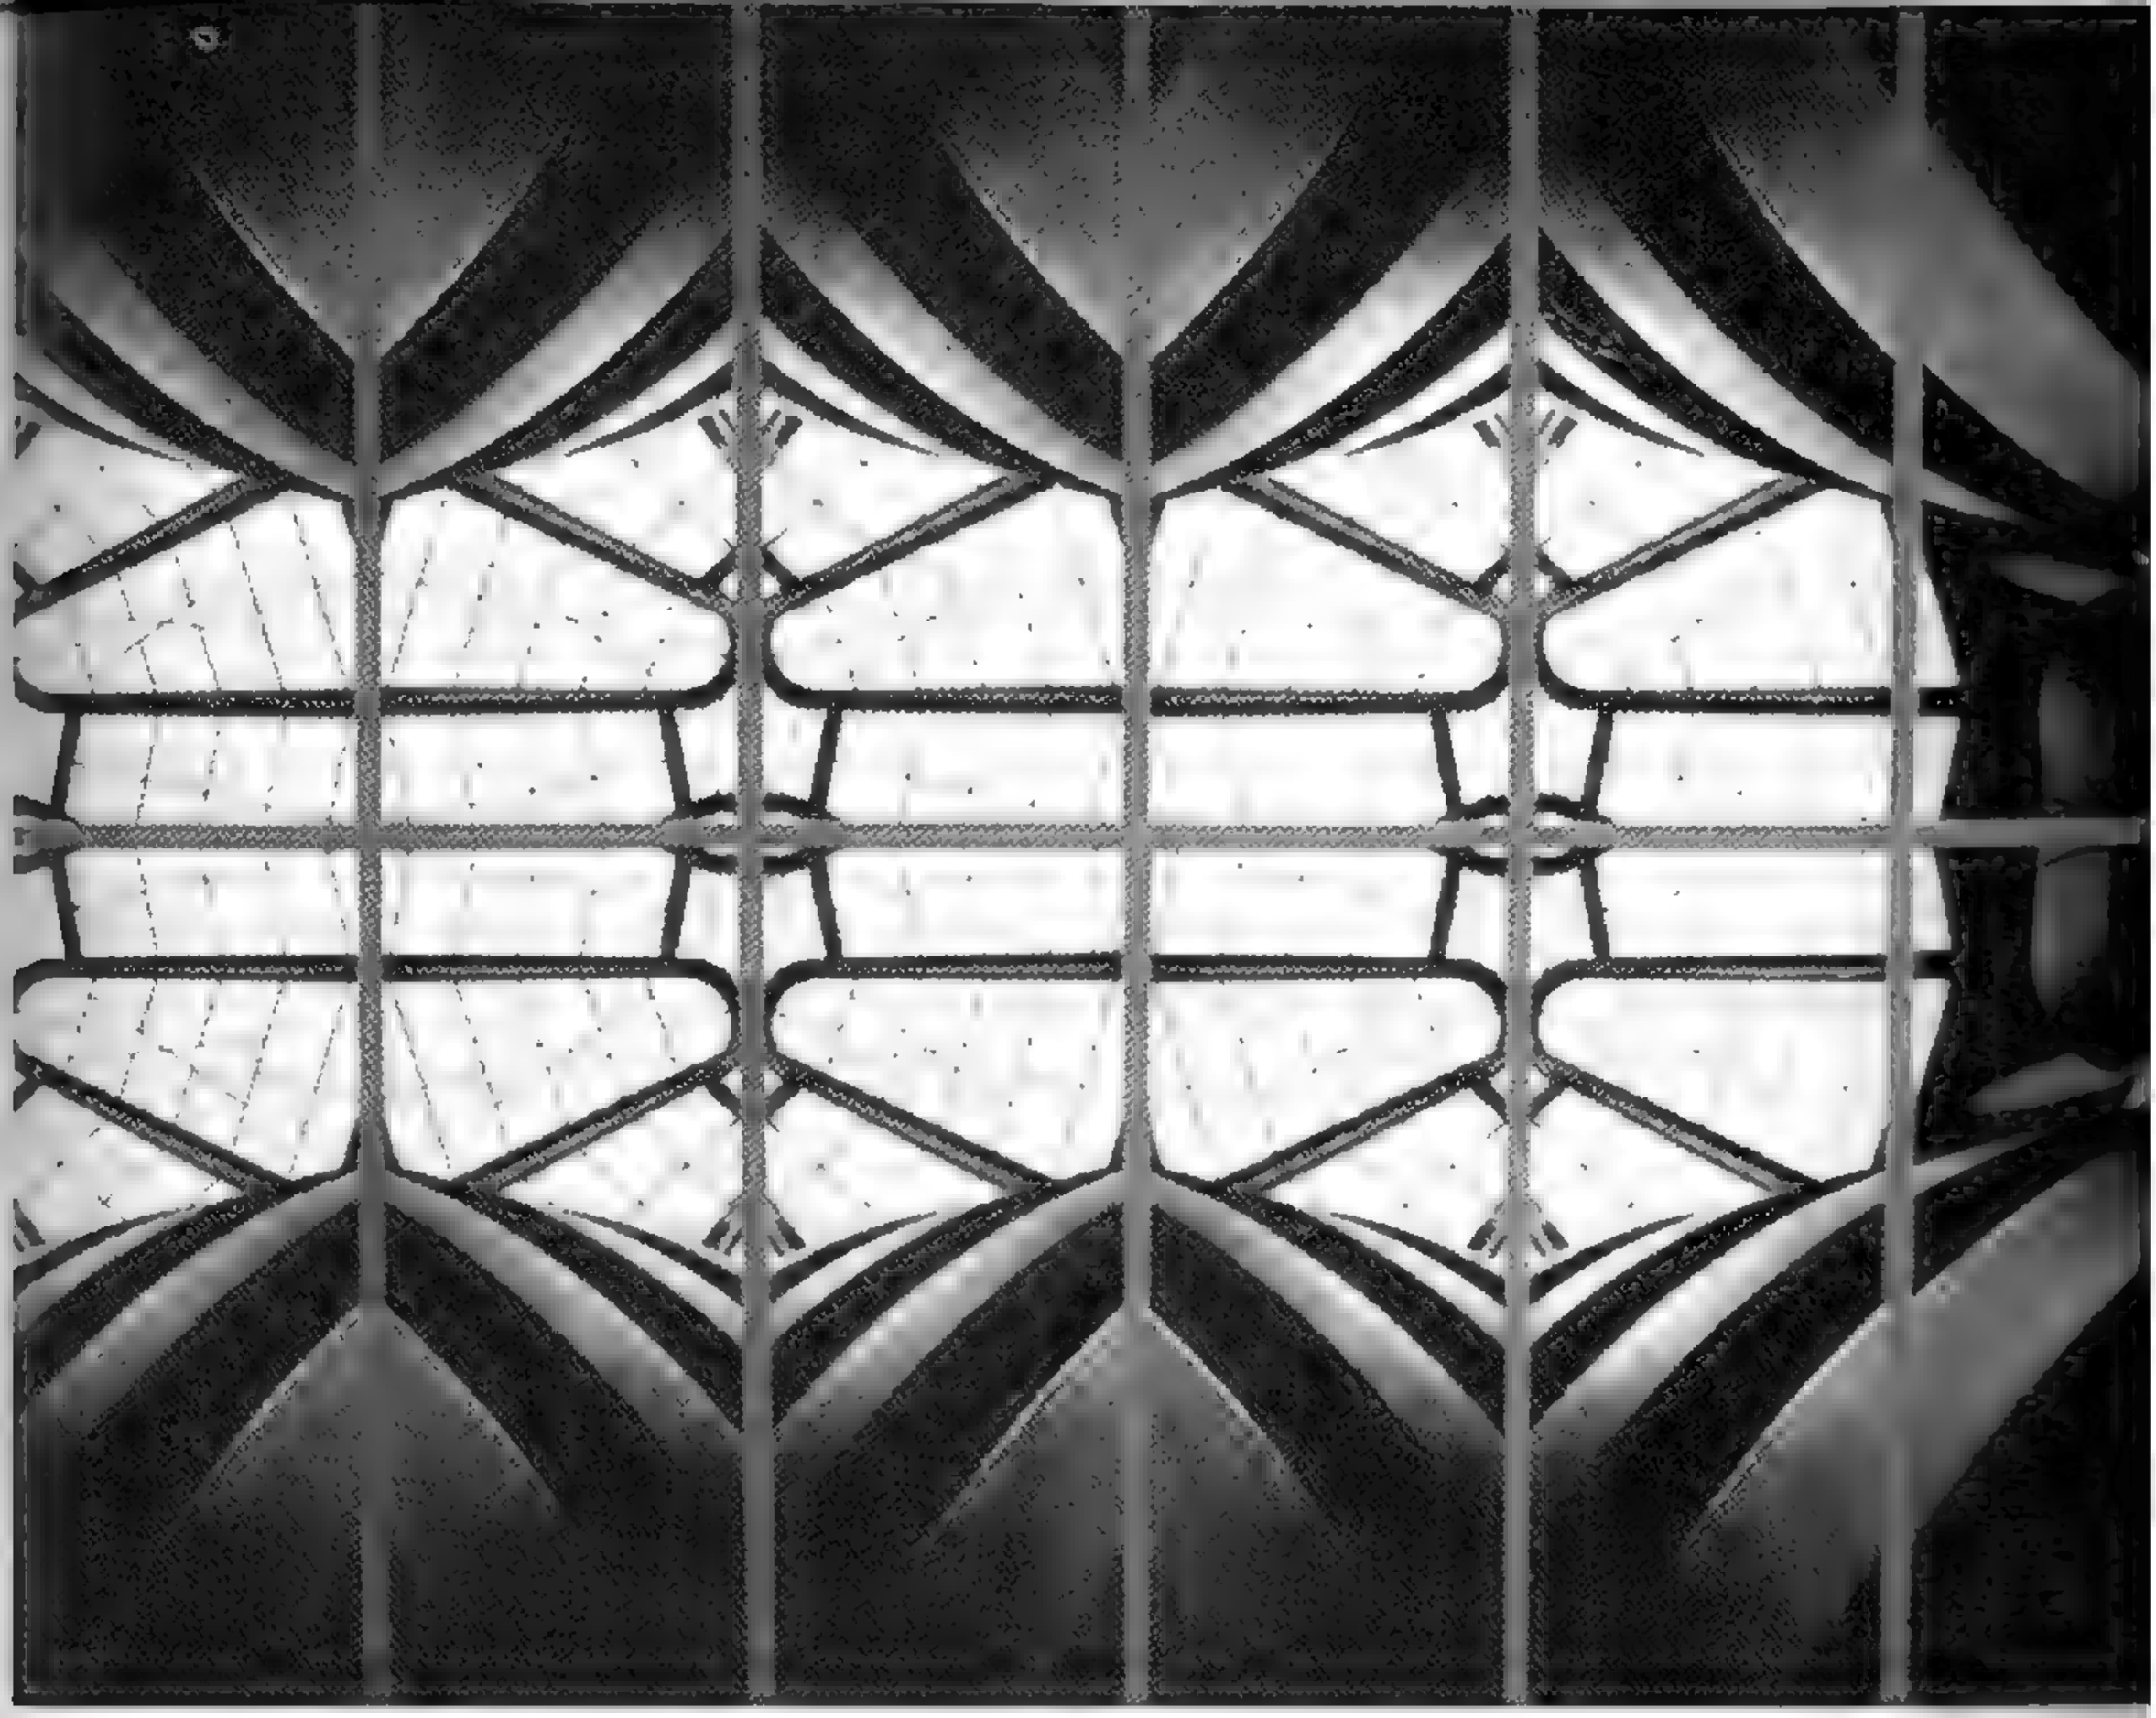
Pete and Dan.





What is love?

A feeling
A want
A toy
A need; to be wanted?

Or is it just the thought of togetherness
the sharing of one's existence with another?

Is it really all beautiful?
or is it like a flower;
a seed, alone in the ground
finding food to let it grow, to sprout out into a world
of light,
wanting to stretch out
to find the warmth
the love,
then blooming into one perfect flower
sweet smelling and colourful

Soon finding without warm sunlight and care
it whithers away
leaving only a faded dark shell
as it remains

Canada is like you– young, strong and healthy

and with your help, it'll stay that way

We're lucky. We live in a country that still has all kinds of good things going for it. Clean air, wide open spaces, untapped resources, and young people who care. You're still in your teens and already you're a lot more involved than we ever were. You shake us and make us learn. And we like the feeling. If you're graduating congratulations. Wherever you're going, keep growing and caring. Canada needs your continued concern.

EATON'S

THE DISCONTENTED

The chasm was deep, wide and black. A bottomless pit that sheltered no life save the greedy mice of deception, which scurried, low in long dark streaks across the broken glass and stones. The blood-red sky was filled with smouldering clouds. A low, muffled rumble of thunder sounded beyond the leafless grappling trees, while its counterpart briefly lit the abyss.

And thus it was, inside her on that bleak autumn evening in September. The train escaped from a tunnel and a broad expanse of damp grey sky coloured the windows. "The reflection of my life," she thought, and rested an aching head against the glass. For living, to her, meant nothing but a bitter pebble caught in the throat. It smothers and chokes. An obstacle which should be dislodged and thrown away.

Ever since she could remember, she had been unhappy. 'The Discontented', her name meant. What a coincidence for her mother to give her such a name! She smiled in the dark mist. It fitted quite well.

She recalled her first agonizing school days. How the other children had delighted in tormenting her! She had been so queer and alien to them. They had been filled, those days, with storms of great awakening, prophesizing what was ahead for her. Now, at seventeen, life seemed to be closing in. Those same children had grown up, and their torturous ways, along with them. She had no friends. She had often told herself she did not want any. But deep within the chasm, the silent stones knew that she longed to unlock the meaning of true friendship. 'But why,' she wondered, 'is friendship so satisfying to people? What, in this cold, hard, world is to be enjoyed, except blessed oblivion?'

Her parents and family, too, seemed foreign and strange. Of course they had provided her with all she had ever had need for. An education, a home to stay in, food, clothes and money, but only in a worldly sense. Not for love, but because they had had to.

The sky inside her split and sent tremors to her surface. 'They've never told me they love me,' she thought resentfully. Her brothers and sisters repelled her. The other relations often exasperated and ridiculed her.

She closed her eyes. How long must life go on? So painful, each day; so tearful, each night; so shattering, each experience; so blighted, this world.

The subway rattled on. The hated school books had slipped to the floor. Inside her, a seedling shot from the broken earth, produced a black flower, which bloomed high above the torn surface, and pointed to the sky. But a mocking wind tore it from the roots, and beat it to the ground. Rain spewed from the parted clouds and trickled from her eyes; the answer to all her problems flashed suddenly in front of her. She knew what she must do.

Death. An untimely death. A glorious death. A revengeful, welcome, long-awaited for death! How they would react to that! They, all of them would see how unreal life was, and how soothing, death. The train slackened its speed. She stood, trembling, and groped for the door as the train slid to her usual stop. She stepped out and stood, shivering, in apprehension, waiting for the next subway. The rain was washing away the earth, rinsing her blackened surface with tears.

People hurrying by, stopped to notice the sight of a totally disheartened child, hidden in the shadows of the station. They tried to ask what was wrong, but her cold outside countenance shackled their voices.

Far down the track, a tremoring began. A gaseous odour filled the station. A faint rumble, then air sifted the station through, forcing out all of her fear. The roar increased, and a light reflected dimly on the subway wall. She smiled in joy. It was coming, the long, grey metal bearer of Death! The clouds gave vent to a torrent! The remains of the flower blew away, charred, in the fiery wind.

She felt herself moving, as if someone was guiding her gently to the edge of the platform.

She heard the shriek of metal on metal. She saw people, running, at all angles, toward her! She heard their cries of anguish and felt the rails beneath her feet. And the, the impact of cold, hard steel!

Blood burst out of her tightened skin and flooded the track clean! She could joyously feel the crunching and snapping of every bone in her body. She heard, above the train's shrieking, someone screaming in her ear! She realized it was herself. The train was carrying her, leaving pieces of her mutilated body along the track, a jumbled puzzle to be sorted out and put together again.

'Die!' She commanded herself. But death would not come! Instead, pain and frustration shot through her. 'Die! Die!' But it wouldn't happen! She could not seem to die! She screamed until the blood ran into her mouth and muffled the sounds. But she was still yet alive!

The train was grinding to a halt, almost carrying her to the next station! 'Give me my reward!' her soul cried. 'Release me, help me!' But no one heard. She was blown apart, the clouds thick and black inside her. An avalanche racked the sky. She felt herself lifted, heard cries around her, raucous cries of vultures, satisfied with their carrion.

The urgent whine of a siren penetrated the layers of agony. And then, all was hushed. One sound broke out above the rest—the sobs of her parents in anguish—the tortured cry of broken hearts.

Love spewed from the sounds, soothing her pain. The tears of her parents washed her blackened bones.

And suddenly, the sun broke through the shattered clouds, giving her a sweet, peaceful feeling of content. A wave broke from the tranquil sea, and, like, a maternal arm, bore her gently into the cool, blue foam of welcome, eternal sleep.

Man's Creation

We travel round throughout the world
In cars and big jet planes
But very few can still enjoy
The Beauty that remains.

To see the clearness of a lake
Untouched by human hands
To see it sparkle in the sun
Unspoiled by man's cruel hands.

These things I know far surpass
Those things made by man
And man's creation shall pass away
Like all things made by man.

Many students just can't wait to get out of Weston. They want to be out doing their own thing; earning money and living their own life. However, when you look back and reflect on your days in Weston you will say it wasn't really that bad. Sure, there were things and people you didn't like, but there were also a great number of good times and great people. Weston isn't just a place to learn. It is people and friendship. We are trying to preserve a bit of Weston in this book so that you can remember the good times and the friends you had at Weston. This yearbook is a glimpse at Weston life and the role you played in it. It is a reflection of Weston C.I. 1974/75 and you.

This yearbook was almost canned due to a lack of student support. However, a small group of dedicated students saved the yearbook. We were all new to the yearbook and as a result, we were surprised to find out how hard it is to produce a good yearbook. I would like to congratulate and thank all the people who worked on the yearbook and put in the long hours to make this yearbook a success. I would especially like to give my thanks to Sue Muskat, Victoria Ashbourne, Paul Edwards, Kim Marshall, Jacquie Scatcherd, Larry Funnell, Marie Niceforo, Joanne Shortt and last but not least I would like to thank Liz Devine, my assistant editor, without whom we couldn't have made this yearbook a success.

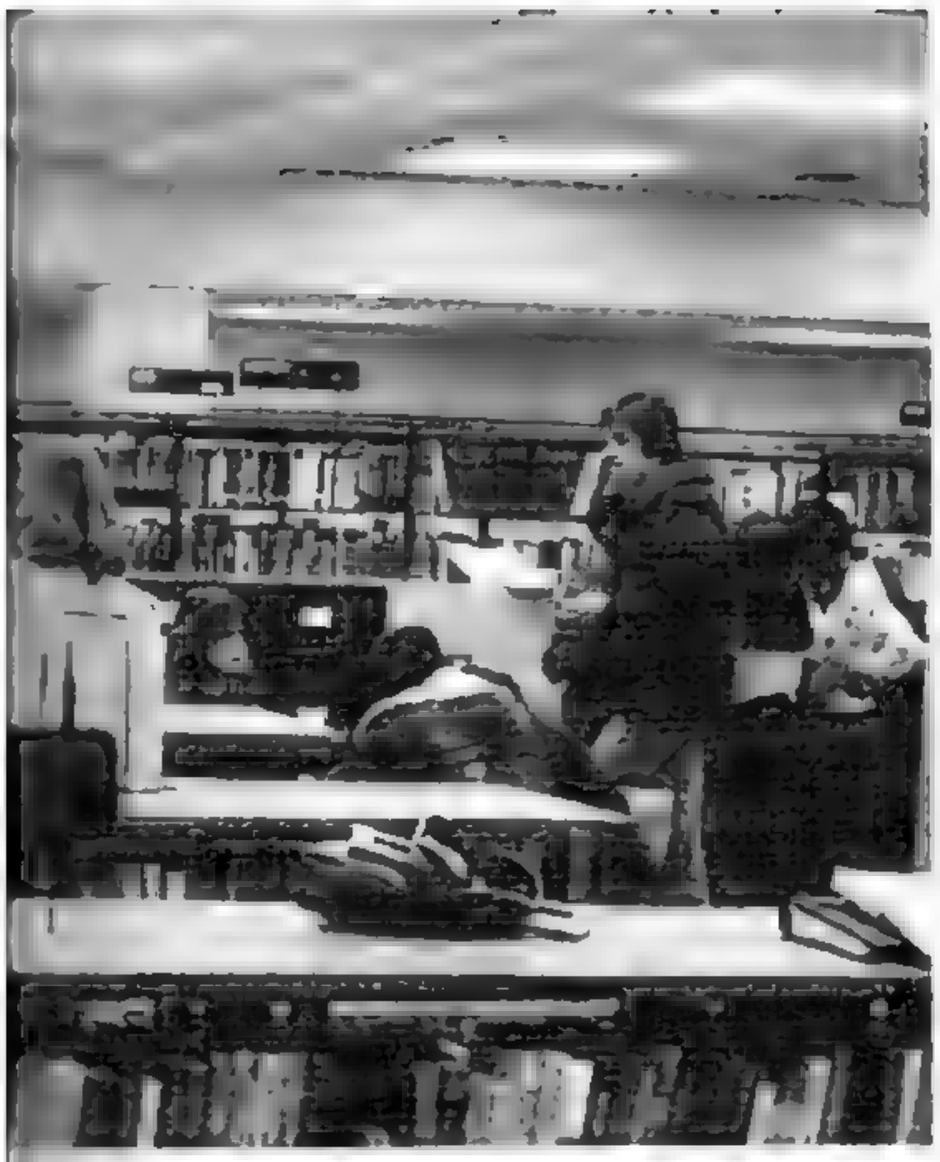
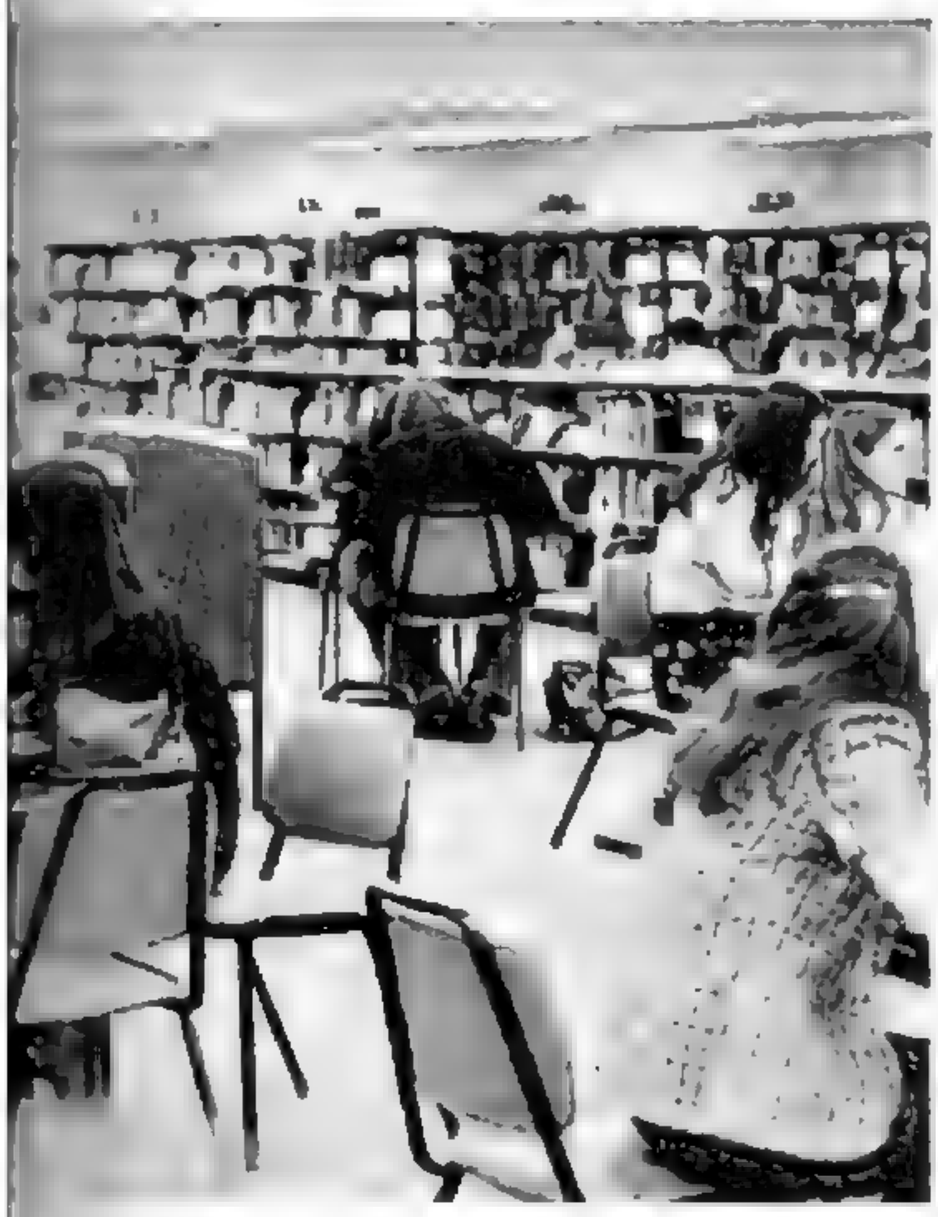
LOOK





What sort of education should a Secondary School provide for its students? This question whether explicitly states is implicit in the mind of every sensitive and thinking teacher.

Should there be more freedom allowed to students, or should the school be more structured with more rules and regulations covering the many facets of school life?

Should the school serve only the immediate residential area or should the school also admit anyone who is interested in the program?

Does the semestered program provide the best allocation of time, or should the courses be taught from September until June?

Should the Resource Centre be redesigned in order to create an environment more conducive to study and research, or should facilities remain unchanged?

Should there continue to be a broad selection of courses available for students to make up their individual programs, or should there be a greater emphasis on a core curriculum?

Should the athletic extra-curricular program allocate more resources for intramural sports catering to a larger number of students, or should the emphasis remain on inter-school sports?

Has the school become too impersonal? Have we lost the feeling that Weston Collegiate is "Our School" with that feeling of belonging that the term "our" implies?

I have thought a great deal about what type of education Weston Collegiate should provide her students. I have listed but a few questions above, some of which have been dealt with, while others still require some consideration.

Unless care is taken, size can cause a school to lose its personal touch, to become an impersonal organization caring little for the individual. A school is a living organism that has to be constantly striving for a balance of freedom for the individual to grow, yet a degree of structure to give direction to that growth. Sensitive teachers are a vital ingredient for achieving the personal touch, so important for the development of individuals to attain a feeling of self-worth and self confidence essential in mature men and women.

I have senses many moods in the school during my sojourn; anticipation, frustration, indifference, participation and enthusiasm. I have watched our staff develop a strong cohesiveness during the changes which the school has experienced, and I can state that Weston Collegiate has exceptional teachers. The same can be said of our secretaries and caretakers.

But the most important dimension of our school is our students. I have come to know many students and their parents during my brief stay. I have enjoyed the personal contacts much more than I can express. Students of Weston Collegiate can match students from any other school you might wish to name.

I have had five great years at Weston Collegiate which witnessed the transfer into our new building, the establishment of the credit system with individual timetables and the introduction of the two-semestered school year. I have enjoyed my stay immensely. I shall follow with considerable interest the activities of the school for many years to come. I welcome Frank Irving as your new Principal as you welcomed me in the fall of 1969.

Bless you all!

W.H. Hill

DISCOVERY

I met a man once,
an ugly caterpillar.

Yet, when I saw him once again,
he had changed.
He had sprouted wings
and flown through the canyons of men's minds.
He had explored,
searched,
interrogated the fields of discovery.
He had seen the beauty,
the glory locked inside man.

He attempted to reveal to all that the impossible is not.
That immortality reigns supreme.

He had succeeded in his endeavor.
He is a greater man than we all.
Yet, He walks alone along these paths.
He sees these beauties with his own eyes, none others ever shall.

For mankind was not meant to have the knowledge
he has obtained.
He shall walk the paths of immortality alone,
forever.

by Sylvia Klein

Blue,
the unknown land of the Eskimo,
where he waits with his harpoon.
the air as cold as its atmosphere,
the waters,
clear,
Natures mirror.

By Anna Baffa

GREEN

Green is the colour of Nature grass, spring forest, leaves once every year this beautiful living colour is intruded upon with a light flowing crystally substance, the living colour stretches like a centipede
struggling for survival,
soon the unwanted friend leaves and the terrifying pain is overcome.
Survival is encountered.

By Pat Rippington

BLACK AND WHITE

The sky is black,
while we live in darkness,
the world is impure,
But white is the absence of colour,
As it snows,
The world becomes pure.

What's up Doc?

Summer's Slowly Dieing

Summer is slowly dieing
Into a coat of red
Its leaves are quickly flying and dancing round my head

Fall's coat of rich bright red and gold Has reached forth on the trees and flowers are no longer bright
As warmth now quickly flees

As sun and warmth and flowers
Give way to wind and rain
Our once loved summer sunshine
Leaves slowly as it came

WALLS

Cement walls
on the outside.
Brick, plaster, movable walls
on the inside.
The walls of classrooms
envelope different worlds
from one another.
They enclose a group of people
together,
and make them a class.
They separate and join
and lead you many places.
They are usually taken for granted
But walls work wonders
(Perhaps they even hold the school together)
And we're lucky that walls can't talk,
For they hear many things
And they ring with laughter which can even be heard when you're alone.

A DAY IN THE LIFE

Late again,
detention,
Hurrying,
scurrying,
looking for books,
Who's got an extra pen?
Home work done?
Well, I,...
detention,
Finally, a spare.
Rest period in the library,
Okay, this table out!
Geography assignment due today.
oh no, I completely forgot.
Who's got it done?
Assembly day schedule today.
Oh good, a spare.
What period is this?
We should never have gone.
Walking through the hall with friends,
Where were you in class today?
Well, you see I....
detention.
Thank God, last period
No, it's only fifth period
What class was I just in?
At last, 3:20.
Going to the hockey game?
Hurry up or we'll miss it.
No homework?
I'll worry about it tomorrow.
